

I Love That Song! - A Yearly Tradition

Written by DarkTetsuya

Thursday, 18 November 2010 20:39 - Last Updated Friday, 19 November 2010 00:33

19, November: {audio}<http://angry-gamers.com/music/19nov.mp3>{/audio}

20, November: {audio}<http://angry-gamers.com/music/20nov.mp3>{/audio}

(KONAMI WILL SUE, so I can't link you to download directly.)

That's right boys and girls, it's that time of year... So you know what that means! I Love That Song revisits two sentimental favorites, Good-Cool's 19, November and dj nagureo's 20, November!

And to answer your question, no I don't know why good-cool decided to call his song 19, November when it doesn't sound anything like 20, November.

20, November has been with the BEMANI series for as long as I can remember, with various appearances in beatmania, IIDX, and even in DDR as early as 3rd MIX!

19, November actually came 2nd, first debuting in beatmania IIDX 6th Style, and later appearing in DDR Ultramix 2 for the XBOX, and I believe also appeared on one of the Japanese PS2 versions post-Extreme. (EDIT: I just discovered that legendary DDR freestyler Mel B actually crafted the steps for this song's appearance in DDR!)

As an aside, djnagureo actually has a twitter @djnagureo although he only speaks Japanese it seems. But if you want to see a particular song featured here, hit myself (@darktetsuya) or act_deft (@act_deft) on twitter!