It's St. Patricks Day on the day of our live taping, but we don't let any festivities get in the way of covering the gaming news of the week which starts with news that influencers and big media personalities were paid quite a bit of money to play games on stream such as Apex Legends. Do we think this is way too much money for these sorts of personalities to be paid? Or do we think it's fair based on the size of these audiences? We discuss along with our LIVE chatters, then dive into what we've been playing this week as well as the week in gaming news!
