

Written by Deekman
Monday, 01 March 2010 07:03

Tonights part A gets off to the most random of starts, but it just would not be Orange Lounge Radio if it was not for the tangent train! CHOO CHOO! Well, we do get down to video game news, running down the latest from Nintendos big press event this week, as well as a new unlock for developers to play with on the PS3! There is some sad news out of the UK though, as apparently layoffs do not just effect the US video game scene. Also, apparently you can score some Peggle for FREE, if you do not mind a little spam! In Part B, Rob talks about his thoughts on the new PSN reality show 'The Tester' while Shermie the cat has a review all her own. Final Fantasy 14 might have the shortest turnaround of a Final Fantasy game EVER at just 2 days, and what is a strange new trademark that has been filed by Squeenix recently? The show takes a serious note to catch up with a long time listener from Chile about the tragic events that took place this week, and then take some more phone calls, e-mails, twitter topics, and much much more from our listeners. Tune in to this weeks episode of the show where EVERY gamer has a voice- Orange Lounge Radio!

{enclose OLR_357_022810.mp3}