Valve surprised the industry this week by unveiling the Steam Deck, a portable but also dockable PC meant for gaming on the go. Or as many people are joking online, a Switch Pro. However, is what Valve doing something meant to be direct competition for Nintendo, or more an expansion to the market that Nintendo started? We get into that not only in the news tonight, but with the return of live phone calls to the program tonight. There's MUCH more news this week as many companies arrived a little late to the summer gaming news bonanza!

Also in the News:

* Nickelodeon Fighting Game

* FFX-3 ... So you're saying there's a chance?

* Netflix to get into Video Games

* Pokemon Unite
